

English as an International Language

(Curriculum B.E. 2556)

Course Descriptions: Required Courses

The set of required courses covers the three major areas of English as an international language: English Linguistics, English Language Instruction, Language Assessment and Evaluation. This is to prepare students for further intensive study in elective courses and also their theses/dissertations. The required courses are listed below with their course descriptions.

2010510 Linguistic Foundation of English

LING FOUND ENG

Basic concepts of linguistic theories; analyses of English sounds, words, sentences, discourses; social variation and language change

2010530 Foundation of Language Assessment and Evaluation

FOUND LANGAS

Principles of language assessment and evaluation; objectives of language testing (for instruction and research); means of assessing and evaluating language abilities; design and validation of appropriate instruments for assessment and evaluation

2725610 Foundation of Language Instruction

FOUND LANG INST

Principles and theories of English language teaching and learning; approaches in language instruction; application of teaching techniques; trends and innovations in English language instruction and related research